POLITICAL NEWS.

Interesting Gossip About Blaine's Future Intentions.

SMALL BOOM FOR ROSECRANS

President Green of the Western Union Denies that Election Returns were Handled Unfairly—An Investigation Courted.

CHICAGO, Ills., Nov 25.—[Special.]—The Times has two columns of Augusta specials on Blaine's home life. They declare positively that Blaine did not want the presidential nomination. This is attested by his neighbors. It oppressed him more than most people will ever be able to understand. He almost faltered in the presence of the great responsibility thrust upon him. He had not expected that the use of his name in the convention, which he had permitted in order to defeat Edmunds and Arthur, could result in his nomination. Instead of controlling the convention for some one else, as he anticipated, that body controlled itself for him, and he found himself with a jewel that he did not want.

In a few days Blaine's family will go to Washington for the winter, simply following his rule of the last twenty years. There they will follow their customary habits of life and receive and be received as though they had suffered no disappointments.

People who expect to find him sour and ill-tempered after this defeat have reckoned without their host. The other class who thought he would weaken and decline in health, if he failed to reach the presidency, must be prepared to see the same fresh, breezy man as when he was on the higher wave of public favor. He intends to remain in public view, and it is more than likely that he will accept a seat in congress after his literary task has been completed. Either Speaker Hale or Congressman Milliken would retire to give place to Blaine, and in return Hale could become governor. Frye would not yield unless compelled to, and that would keep Blaine busy to beat him if he tried. There is a general feeling that the matter can be arranged to accommodate all statesmen.

The Times' special says that Blaine's antagonism to Edmunds and Arthur grows out of the latter's reflection upon his South American policy, and his efforts to get Conkling returned to the senate after he had resigned. He had hoped to be secretary of state with Arthur's successor. Edmunds helped to take a part of New England from him, twice, when Blaine had been within a shadow of the nomination of the presidency.

MASS MEETING OF COLORED CITIZENS.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov 25.—A mass meeting of colored citizens was held to-night to consider the effect of the change in the administration on the colored people in the south. By request, Senator Colquitt spoke. He said the two races would not be brought nearer together, and would not stand each other better than ever before. He assured the colored men that their rights would be guarded as zealously by the democratic state and national administrations as if they were white. Letters were read from General McDaniel and Senator Brown. Speeches were also made by W. H. Tucker and Mayor Goodwin. Governor Cleveland's recent utterance, assuring the negroes that every right they possessed should be protected by his administration, was read and received with cheers by the colored men.

CURIOUS TECHNICALITY IN WEST VIRGINIA.

NEW YORK, Nov 25.—[Special.]—It is said a curious technicality has arisen in West Virginia which may change the state government and possibly give the electoral vote of the state to Blaine. At the October election a constitutional amendment was adopted changing the election of state officers from October to November. A number of prohibitionists immediately put a ticket for state officers in the field. It also bore the names of the republican presidential electors, and in the fourth district the name of the republican candidate for congress. At the November election about 15,000 of these votes were cast, and 300 in the Fourth district. These were thrown out, electing the democratic candidate by 104 majority. A recount is called for, which it is said will elect the republican congressional candidate and probably the republican electoral ticket.

A SMALL BOOM FOR ROSECRANS.

NEW YORK, Nov 25.—[Special.]—The World this morning printed a notice that a meeting of California residents in this city and Brooklyn had been called by Colonel R. I. Mills to indorse Rosecrans for secretary of war in the new cabinet. The call states that his record as commander of the army of the Cumberland, and chairman of the military committee of the house, and his effective work during the campaign, are strong arguments in favor of his selection, which, it concedes, would be a graceful and deserved compliment to the Pacific slope and the west. Your reporter cannot trace the origin of this call, either at the World office or among Californians on Wall street.

HENDRICKS SAYS ALL IS SERENE.

NEW YORK, Nov 25.—[Special.]—Hendricks being interviewed last night said: "I came to this city for the sole purpose of attending the Brooklyn meeting, and being here I thought it proper to pay my respects to Mr. Cleveland. I went to Albany, Saturday, and saw him. My visit was of the strictly social nature, and this talk in the newspapers is all nonsense. There was no disagreement of any kind. The meeting was most cordial and pleasant."

THE "WORLD'S" EXPLANATION.

NEW YORK, Nov 25.—[Special.]—The World's editorial this morning thinks the California republican majority must have been purchased by railroad monopolists. It says: "California is the most monopoly cursed state in the Union. It is owned by railroad, mining and sugar kings. The monopolists were all for Blaine, and they delivered the state to him in good style. California is one of the very few states which responded to the so-called magnetism of Blaine."

ONLY A FABRICATION.

NEW YORK, Nov 25.—[Special.]—A Tribune editorial says: "The Herald Saturday published what purported to be a dispatch from Philadelphia, giving the views of ex-Senator B. K. Bruce of Mississippi on Blaine's Augusta speech. The Evening Post also published the dispatch, and pointed to it with pride, as a blow at Blaine from the leading colored man of the south. It will be seen by a telegram from Bruce this morning that the dispatch was a pure fabrication."

WILL HENDRICKS RUN THINGS.

NEW YORK, Nov 25.—[Special.]—A special from Washington says: There are two views among democrats as to whether Hendricks is going to be something more than former vice presidents have been. Democrats coming from the west and south especially have this impression, on account of Hendricks' experience and Cleveland's inexperience, and they look to the former as the proper cabinet maker.

NEW JERSEY'S VOTE.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov 25.—The state board of canvassers completed their canvass this morning, the result showing Cleveland's plurality 4,35[illegible]. The total vote is: Cleveland, 12[illegible],7[illegible]; Blaine, 123,4[illegible]; St John, 6,1[illegible]; Butler, 3,49[illegible]. The democrats elected Green, Ricwock and McAdoo to congress, and the republicans elected Hires, Buchanan, Phelps and Lehlbach.

A SUGGESTION TO CLEVELAND.

PARIS, Nov 25.—Evenement, in an editorial article, says that among the first acts that President Cleveland should propose to the American congress is the abolition of import duties on pictures.

UNITED STATES SENATOR CHOSEN.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov 25.—The legislature to-day selected James L. Pugh to be United States senator. He received a unanimous vote in the house and all but one in the senate.

THE VOTE IN VIRGINIA.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov 25.—The state canvassing board completed its work this afternoon. The result is: Cleveland, 14[illegible],49[illegible]; Blaine, 1[illegible]9,[illegible].

Young Girls

Are at a critical period when they are about maturing, and developing into women. The lack of watchful care at this time may result in fixing irregularities upon delicate organs, and entailing a long list of female weaknesses. All this may be avoided, and the young woman come through this period clothed in all the beauty and strength of a perfectly healthy organization by the aid of Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," prepared especially for female troubles by one of the most successful physicians of the day.

THE WESTERN UNION.

President Green Denies that the Company Acted Unfairly in Transmitting Election Returns.

NEW YORK, Nov 25.—The following letter has been published by President Green of the Western Union Telegraph Company:

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
NEW YORK, Nov 2[illegible], 1884.

To the Public:—Now, since the presidential election is settled and the excitement incident to a close political contest has subsided, it is proper to state that we are prepared to show most conclusively the utter groundlessness of the charges against the Western Union Telegraph Company of partiality in reporting or withholding the returns of the state of New York. I deny, in the most emphatic manner, that the Western Union company delayed, altered or withheld the election returns of this state, or any other state, or tampered with them in any way. It had nothing whatever to do with the returns of the state of New York, except to transmit them over its lines, as prepared by agents of the Associated Press.

All the returns of the state were collected by the Associated Press, all the compiling was done in its office by its own agents, and all bulletins were prepared by it, and copies were simply delivered to Mr. Somerville, superintendent of the newspaper service, for general distribution to the public. This company had nothing to do with making the bulletins, nor did any officer or agent, or other person connected with or interested in this company, except the operatives who transmitted the returns, have access to or see any of them until bulletins had been made up therefrom in the Associated Press office and handed to us for public distribution. I have no reason to believe that the agents of the Associated Press acted otherwise than in an impartial manner.

HOW THE BULLETINS WERE SECURED.

Ordinarily many of our offices are not kept open for business after 8 o'clock P. M., and to assist in meeting the extraordinary expense of the extra employment of several thousand night operators, we have for many years made arrangements with press associations giving us the privilege of selling bulletins to political and social clubs, and other subscribing customers. We simply took the associated press bulletins as that association had made them up, and delivered them, as heretofore, to customers who had subscribed for them, nothing more.

The charge that returns were purposely withheld or that there was unusual delay in reporting them is entirely false. Instead of such delay there was extraordinary promptness. Never before have reports from so many election districts been received within so short a time. Within forty-eight hours after the count of ballots began, returns were received from ninety-eight per cent of the 3000 election districts in the state, although the night of the election was stormy, and there was some trouble working the wires. No delay occurred in any report handed in to our offices outside of the city of New York, and within the city the telegraph service was as nearly perfect as it was possible to make it, and the only trouble was with some of the short wires, hastily erected for temporary use.

THE CLOSENESS OF THE CONTEST.

It is here to be noted that heretofore the majorities reported from the most populous, and therefore the most accessible counties, have been so decisive that the popular mind has been set at rest respecting the result of the election on the first night, and there being no hope or fear of a change in the general result, subsequent returns, more or less tardy, have straggled in unheeded. In two instances in this state I have been informed that the county canvassers, who met one week after the election this year, had to adjourn over, because the county clerks had, up to that time, been unable to get in the vote of their counties.

The only other returns complained of were those of Indiana, where, at the request of the political committees and the press, in the absence of any agent of the associated press, the reports that came through were sent exclusively by our superintendent, Mr. I. T. Wallack, who used every effort to obtain all the returns as speedily as possible. I consider the demand for an investigation of that service made by the Indianapolis Sentinel, and also by Mr. Wallack himself, reasonable and proper, and I have asked the chairman of the Indiana democratic state committee to take part in the investigation, or to furnish a representative to do so.

The management of this company in its business relations to the public, is strictly non-political and non-partisan. The employees represent every shade of political opinion, and are in the company's services solely by virtue of their proficiency as telegraphers. What their individual political opinions may be has never been in any case called into question, nor have their votes ever been canvassed or ascertained; but of those with whom I personally came in contact, I know that there are quite as many democrats as republicans. It is therefore manifestly absurd to charge that the service of the company could be converted into a party machine, or could in any way distort or stifle the facts, when such an attempted conspiracy could only have been made by the aid of a large number of members of the political party which it was designed to injure.

NORVIN GREEN, President.

THE EAST.

Meeting of the House Committee on Appropriations.

THE SCOURGE IN THE SOUTH

Attorney-General Brewster Points Out Some Errors and Asks that they be Remedied—Items from Various Points.

THE QUARREL BETWEEN GENERAL SHERMAN AND JEFF DAVIS.

NEW YORK, Nov 25.—[Special.]—This evening's Commercial says of the General Sherman and Jeff Davis quarrel: Sherman, in a speech, said that the secession of the southern states was not what it pretended to be, but was a conspiracy, of which Davis was leader, designed to enable that gentleman to control the United States. But Davis was not a believer in the doctrine of secession, but was prepared during the war, to coerce any southern state that might be disposed to secede from the confederacy, and finally that he (Sherman) had seen a letter from Davis, declaring his purpose to turn Lee's army against any southern state that should make such an attempt. In response, Davis has published a letter declaring the statements of General Sherman base slanders and "unqualifiedly false." He declared further that he never wrote the letter which General Sherman says he has seen. Now Sherman has suggested to the reporters that he is entirely capable of managing this discussion for himself, and on the whole we are inclined to think he is. The Commercial quotes from Davis' own history, and other confederate books, to show either the untrustworthiness of Davis' memory, or his reckless perversion of facts. One thing is certain, Davis conducted the affairs of the confederate government upon lines precisely contrary to those which a sincere and consistent believer in state sovereignty would have chosen. An ex-confederate writer has declared, and has cited facts to prove, that there was never more absolute military despotism than that established at Richmond. Alfred Rowens, recent military secretary of Beauregard, prints official documents of reminders to Davis that his memory or some other faculty is peculiarly untrustworthy.

HOUSE COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS.

WASHINGTON, Nov 25.—The house committee on appropriations met to-day at the capitol, and inaugurated their work for the next session. Chairman Randall and Ellis, Townsend, Follett and Ryan were present, and Keifer, Holman and Forney were represented by others. Estimates for six annual bills, namely, the postoffice, Indian, consular and diplomatic, army, navy and military academy were placed in the hands of sub-committees, and it is expected that one or more of these measures will be in readiness for consideration by the whole committee when the session begins Monday. The subdivision of the committee, as agreed upon to-day, is as follows: Legislative, executive and judicial bill, Holman, Hancock and Cannon; sundry civil, Randall, Forney and Ryan; army, Forney, Townsend and Keifer; navy, Hutchins, Randall and Long; postoffice, Townshend, Holman and Horr; Indian, Ellis, Hutchins and Ryan; consular and diplomatic, Barnes, Townshend and Wellborn; military academy, Keifer, Forney and Ellis; district of Columbia, Follett, Hutchins and Cannon; deficiency, Randall, Burnes and Long; fortifications, Horr, Ellis and Hancock.

Randall will have a conference with the secretary of the navy to-morrow on the subject of the navy appropriations for the final six months of the current fiscal year. It is thought probable that last year's appropriations will be continued for that period, as was done last session for the six months from July 1, and that thus the question of making an appropriation for the proposed new cruisers, on which the two houses came to a deadlock last session, will be left for the next congress. Randall, however, would not express an opinion on that subject, or as to any part of the policy of the committee, remarking simply that he did not yet know what would be done.

THE SCOURGE IN THE SOUTH.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Nov 25.—The following is from a well-known preacher in the southwest of Virginia: "Latest advices concerning the epidemic in Wise, Lee, Dickinson and Buchanan counties are heartrending. On Guest's river, Wise county, within a radius of four miles, are thirty cases of the disease. In one instance a father, mother and six children died. Many persons die for want of attention. Business is suspended, all being concerned with sick and dying. Six persons were buried in one graveyard in one day. The disease is assuming a milder form in some localities. Not less than 175 of the best citizens of Wise county alone have died during the last few days. The disease has made its appearance in Lee county, and several deaths have occurred. More worthy people never called more loudly for relief than these. They need nurses, medicines and a committee of intelligent physicians to diagnose the disease and stop its terrible march."

A GIRL'S LONG FAST.

NEW YORK, Nov 25.—[Special.]—A special from Long Plain says: Kate Smulsey, who has now fasted 258 days, is not materially changed in the last few weeks. She is but slightly weaker, the irresistible shaking of her body and arms still continuing. The appearance of her flesh is not such as would be expected of one who has endured such a protracted fast, but is rather bloated and abnormal in semblance. She receives the best of care from her mother, who is continually by her side. There is no question in this community as to the veracity of the Smulsey family, which is highly respected. The women are very reluctant in allowing the case to come to public notice, and extremely diffident on being approached with inquiries concerning the girl's condition. Miss Smulsey is 20 years old.

AN IMPORTANT TRIAL.

WASHINGTON, Nov 25.—In the court of claims to-day Judge Jeremiah Wilson began argument in the case of the government vs. the Union Pacific Railroad company. Judge Dillon of New York was also present as counsel for the company. It has been agreed that the questions to be argued shall be: what constitutes the net earnings of the main line of the road under the Thurman act, and what is a fair compensation for the government to pay the company for the transportation of mails. Counsel for the railroad company are of the opinion that the trial will occupy two or three days.

THE PLENARY COUNCIL.

BALTIMORE, Nov 25.—A regular daily secret session of the plenary council was held to-day, with a full attendance of members. The reports of the committees are now nearly all in, and the remainder of the time appointed for the sitting of the council will be occupied in discussing decrees. As business draws towards a close there is even greater reticence on the part of the members. There was a meeting of bishops and theologians this afternoon. To-night Bishop Keane of Richmond preached in the cathedral on Catholic societies.

SPRUNG A LEAK AT SEA.

NEW YORK, Nov 25.—[Special.]—The Herald's shipping intelligence contains the following: The ship William G. Davis from San Francisco for Antwerp, as before reported, put into Valparaiso, October 17, leaking badly, at the rate of twelve inches of water per hour. The captain reports that the ship sprung a leak when on the equator. A diver had stopped the leak, and the vessel was ready to proceed on the 25th.

FOR THE CHINESE.

NEW YORK, Nov 25.—[Special.]—Philadelphia specials say: A Chinese guild has been formed here by members of churches of five different denominations, interested in religious teaching among the Chinese. Rooms for instruction and feeding, and hospital care, will be provided.

A DREARY THANKSGIVING.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov 25.—The Record has private intelligence this evening to the effect that the combination has ordered the suspension of all mines in the anthracite regions on Thanksgiving day, and for the first six days in December.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—California, fair weather. North Pacific coast, light rains and partly cloudy weather.

Lundborg's Perfume, Edenia.
Lundborg's Perfume, Marechal Neil Rose.
Lundborg's Perfume, Alpine Violet.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL'S REPORT.

He Points Out Numerous Wrongs and Errors and Asks that they be Remedied.

WASHINGTON, Nov 25.—In his annual report Attorney General Brewster suggests that all accounts of the chief of supervisors of election be in open court, under inspection and examination of the district attorney or his sworn assistant, and that they must then be forwarded to the proper department for further examination and reduction if deemed advisable and necessary. These election laws are of the highest importance to the general welfare, and their proper execution is a matter of prime necessity. Their abuse, on the other hand, is a great public wrong, to be guarded against by appropriate legislation.

The attorney general directs the attention of congress to the want of proper legislation for criminal cases. "In preparing indictments," he says, "for offenses against the United States, it is found necessary to follow the common law forms of the last century, with all the technicalities, verbosity, descriptions, repetitions and precise statements formerly required, whereby that which should be simple and concise written accusations, becomes a lengthy and painfully confused mass of descriptions and allegations wholly unintelligible to the defendant, who is called upon to answer, or to the jury selected to try the case. To reduce pleading to a plain and comprehensive statement of the facts would serve equally to the advantage of the government and defendant, and there is no reason why an indictment ought not to be adjudged sufficient and good in law which charges a crime substantially in the language of the act prohibiting the crime and prescribing punishment, or so plainly that the nature of the offence charged may be easily understood by the jury, when it is necessary to describe or make averment of any written or printed instrument. As the law now stands, such instrument must be copied into the indictment with literal exactness, equal to a photographic reproduction. The omission of a word that appears almost undiscernible among the lines and flourishes created by the skill of an engraver or penman, would be a fatal defect that might enable a guilty man to escape punishment.

DEFECTS POINTED OUT.

The attorney general points to the evils, omissions and defects in the present law in the cases of murder, manslaughter, larceny, demurrers, motions to quash, challenges, etc., and submits the draft of a bill designed to afford a remedy. In connection with the subject of jury duty he says: "It is a belief and common report that the business of jury fixing flourishes to an alarming extent in the district. It is as certain that men live and support their families, and even become rich in the practice of this nefarious profession. As the jury system now exists, the fact that unscrupulous men should safely conduct a lucrative business in debauching juries in the district should occasion no surprise. Twenty-six jurors serve for a term of three months, and the jury fixer would become acquainted with at least two or three of them in a few hours, and that would give him a strong beginning in his efforts to thwart justice. With but twenty-six jurors serving for three months it would not require one third of that time for a combined force of jury fixers to become thoroughly acquainted with the habits, associations, characters and business of each juror, and the influences, if any, that could be used to reach him or bring him within their power. Then again, what is there to prevent one or more well dressed and apparently respectable looking rogues placing themselves in the way of a marshal or his deputies to be brought into court as talesmen, and serving upon juries to acquit their friends or confederates.

A RECOMMENDATION.

The attorney general recommends that the jurisdiction of the United States circuit and district courts for the judicial district of Maryland be extended, for the purpose of securing trial in such courts, and before juries drawn from the entire state of Maryland, of cases involving crimes committed in the District of Columbia against the United States. The national treasury, he says, is a great center of allurement and temptation. Inroads are made upon it, through all the avenues by which it can be approached. All plans to defraud the government, no matter where contrived, are mostly consummated in Washington, and when the guilty parties are arrested their trial must of necessity take place before a jury drawn in the district. The arrest of one set of defendants brings to them the sympathy and active aid of all others engaged in similar schemes. If defendants are wealthy, as is often the case, by a liberal expenditure of money, they secure the acquaintance and friendship of prominent men, who are of a social disposition, and whose open and public association and companionship with defendants is not without its helpful effect. When the case is called for trial the government stands alone, and opposed by many disadvantages, while defendants, aided not only by their wealth and the encouragement and influence of their friends, but by a certain feeling of indifference which seems to prevail in Washington concerning such crimes, are permitted to depart from the court-room, triumphing in their acquittal, escaping punishment, and scandalizing the administration of justice. Such has been the case before, and such will occur again, so long as the national treasury is confided solely to the protection of local juries."

The attorney-general renews his recommendations that the system of paying United States marshals be changed from "fees" to salaries, and that additional legislation be had to protect the executive and civil officers of the government in performing their duties, and against outrages committed upon them because they have faithfully performed them.

Attention is called to the fact that the legislature of Utah refuses to appropriate funds for execution of the territorial laws, under congressional legislation. If this legislation is to be maintained, he says, special appropriations must be made annually to meet the demands of justice.

SOUTH AMERICA.

A BAD STATE OF AFFAIRS.

NEW YORK, Nov 25.—[Special.]—The Panama Star and Herald of the 16th dwells on filth and deaths in Colon. "So far thirty deaths from fever are reported among the shipping there. The steamer Bixio lost eight, the steamer Fourneil ten, the steamer Nile three of her crew and two local passengers, the steamer Torino two, and the bark City of Liverpool two out of six cases, and the rest deserted, so at this writing there are two fever ships deserted, the Effidalia, previously reported, and the City of Liverpool. The Colombian government has not paid a penny towards its promised subscription to a charity hospital in our sister city, and the hospital will probably close for the want of funds, when dying in the streets will begin again. As many as three dead men have been picked up in the streets of Colon in a single day since work began on the canal. Should cholera reach the isthmus it will sweep the population off by thousands, as Colon or Aspinwall is particularly filthy and overcrowded."

THE ITALIAN MINISTER PROTESTS.

BUENOS AYRES, Nov 2[illegible].—(Via Galveston.)—The Italian minister has handed the government a note of protest against the refusal to allow the steamer Perseo to enter the port, stating that not only the interests of the country but the principles of humanity were seriously compromised by refusing admittance to so many immigrants. The government replied, declaring it was impossible to allow the steamer to anchor, public health being before everything else. The government also states that they are disposed to proceed in a like manner with all ships whose early arrival may be announced. The papers state that two bodies and several mattresses were found off Punta. They are supposed to be from the steamer Matteo Cruzzo. The papers criticise the action of the Italian minister.

BRITISH TROOPS MOVING SOUTHWARD.

DONGOLA, Nov 25.—The British troops are moving on to Handauk, 20 miles south of here, to avoid the smallpox, which prevails here among natives. There are rumors of an epidemic of cholera prevailing among the troops of El Mahdi in Kordofan.

Dr. S. B. Brittan says: As a rule physicians do not by their professional methods build up the female constitution, and they seldom cure the diseases to which it is always liable in our variable climate and under our imperfect civilization. Special remedies are often required to restore organic harmony and to strengthen the enfeebled powers of womanhood, and for most of these we are indebted to persons outside of the medical profession. Among the very best of these remedies I assign a prominent place to Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 26, 1884.

THE MORTGAGE TAX LAW.

Events have their seed time and harvest. Just now the debtors of this state are reaping the full harvest of the seed sown two years ago in the mortgage tax law. Of this harvest the principal burden is falling on mortgage debtors. When that law was enacted foreign lenders had a good deal of money outstanding in Oregon, much of it on long time. The money had been lent under the impression that the former practice in regard to taxation would be continued. But the mortgage tax law of 1882, enacted chiefly for the purpose of "catching" the foreign lender, changed all that; and so it was resolved by the directors of these lending associations to call in their loans as fast as they should mature. Many of these loans are now falling due; and in pursuance of orders from the managers in Europe the agents here are sending out notices that the money must be paid. Many mortgage debtors of the state who have received these notices have visited Portland to raise money to meet the call, but have found it impossible. The agents or the lenders have no option in the matter and can grant no extensions, the money can be raised in no other quarter, and the outlook for debtors is gloomy enough.

Many seem disposed to attribute the difficulty of raising money in Portland from other sources to take up these obligations to an agreement among capitalists here to allow debtors to be pushed to extremity, so as to "make them sick of the mortgage tax law." This is an error. Home capital, never very abundant here, is now in these hard times scarcely sufficient for the regular transactions of business. The banks have no money except for regular customers, and often find it difficult to supply all their wants. It is simply impossible to find home capital in Portland to take up foreign loans. It is not here. Such indeed is the stringency of the money market that our home lenders are often obliged to refuse extensions of time on loans, and to call in their money to meet pressing wants. During the last two years large sums that had been placed in the state have been quietly withdrawn and sent away, and within a short time payment must be made of other large sums, now rapidly falling due, or collection doubtless be enforced by process of law.

This state of things was sufficiently predicted as a consequence of the mortgage-tax law. But let that pass. It is in order, however, to say once more that the only possible way to secure cheap and abundant money is to let it alone and place no restrictions or burdens upon it. The United States gets loans at three and four per cent. Why? It doesn't try the the penalties of usory laws on the one hand nor tax its loans nor permit them to be taxed on the other. With an open field here for money it would soon be abundant, and competition of money lenders would bring down the interest in a short time to seven and perhaps to six per cent. Capitalists want an assured and calculable income from their money, and object to the fluctuations resulting from our tax system. They do not find fault so much with a low rate of interest as with the uncertainty as to what the actual income will be and with the annoyance of unexpected charges. It is for the people to say whether they want the mortgage-tax law to stand or not.

The excess of receipts over ordinary disbursements of the national treasury now averages annually about one hundred millions. According to the last annual report of Secretary Folger the surplus for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1883, was $132,879,444. The only outlet for this surplus is through payment of the public debt. The surplus has been applied in this way and the debt has shrunk so rapidly that last December, when the report was made, but 305 millions of redeemable bonds were outstanding. When these are paid off, no more will become payable until the year 1891, and but 250 millions even then. The bulk of the debt will not fall due until 1907. Therefore, when the comparatively small amount now due shall have been paid, which will be very soon, the government will be confronted with the alternative of letting the surplus accumulate or of going into the market and buying up the bonds at a premium. Either policy would be unbusinesslike and extravagant. The proper way and the only safe way is to reduce this excessive taxation to reasonable limits.

The great body of office-holders are the postmasters. The whole number of postoffices is 50,491. Of these eighty-one are first-class, 191 second-class, and 1837 third-class. The remainder are fourth-class, and pay the incumbent less than $1000 a year. There is little competition for fourth-class offices, most of them yielding comparatively insignificant commissions. The offices above the fourth-class are what are known as "presidential," that is, appointments to them are made by the president and confirmed by the senate. These appointments are for a term of four years, and the present incumbents cannot be legally removed, save for misconduct or disability, until their terms expire. Postmasters of the fourth-class are appointed by the postmaster-general, and are subject to removal at any time. The safety of the small-fry postmasters will depend upon their own conduct and upon the views of the next postmaster-general in regard to civil service reform, though most of them don't care whether they are "safe" or not.

Those well-meaning people who "went it blind" as a prohibition party in the recent spirited campaign will not know how much unintentional mischief they have done to the cause of practical temperance until they shall, as they eventually will, discover to what extent their folly has divided, demoralized and weakened the organized forces that have for years been at work for the promotion of a common cause. They have alienated from them the sympathies of the churches, and driven the wedge of division into about every "solid" temperance work in the land. The third-party movement was a grave blunder, and has nothing, either in results or reasonable anticipations, to show for itself. The field of politics is not the place—never has been since the world began—for the successful working out of great moral reforms. The wisest reformers the world has ever known discovered this fact long ago.

In their address to Grover Cleveland, gotten up by the independent committees in New York, and approved by Schurz and other leaders, this statement appears: "Republicans and independents who have supported you rely with confidence upon you to maintain all the principles of administrative reform in and around the civil service. They look to you to maintain against all party pressure the vital principle that the public servant, like employes in private business, shall be free from political terrorism, and shall hold his place whatever his party affiliations are." This shows great expectations. But the democratic office-seeker will be heard from, and it is to be seen whether he or the "independent" will have the most influence with the administration.

The unselfishness with which the democratic papers propose that Roscoe Conkling shall be elected to the United States senate by the New York legislature, is only rivaled by the discrimination with which they don't propose that any such independent action shall be taken by a legislature of which their party has a majority.

The Providence Journal, which was an earnest supporter of the republican candidate for the presidency, says that "as Mr. Blaine is engaged in the study of history he may find the words of Mirabeau of some interest: I could have saved France, could I have made the people believe I was virtuous."

No doubt these comparisons are odious—to the democratic mind—but they must continue. Alabama, with a total population of 1,262,505 in 1880, cast in the recent election 152,889 votes, all told, while in Kansas, having in 1880 a population of 996,096, the total vote in the late election was 262,718. The explanation is that in Alabama more than 100,000 votes were suppressed. There can be no other. By the same census the number of males of twenty-one years and over in Alabama in 1880 was 259,884. Yet the vote four years later was only 152,889.

OUR EXPORT TRADE.

The growth of the manufacturing industry is one of the most noteworthy features of our national progress. But it is scarcely less remarkable that of the vast amount of goods manufactured in the United States but 2 per cent. was exported in 1880, the remaining 98 per cent. being consumed at home. This industry has increased since that date, and in a much greater ratio than the home demand, while the export demand remains about the same. The inevitable result has been to stop many of the mills or to reduce their capacity of production and throw thousands of workmen out of employment. A recent letter from our San Francisco correspondent shows that the Pacific coast is affected by the result equally, in proportion to the extent of its manufactures, with the eastern states. The opening of rail connection with Mexico has been of no benefit to the jobbing trade of San Francisco. "The growing trade with China and Japan, the Sandwich Islands, New Zealand and Australia yields nothing to the seller of goods made under a high tariff and sold under its protection. These countries across the ocean buy our fruit, lumber and thousands of other products, but they can buy manufactured goods of all kinds cheaper in other countries, and so they pass us by."

Until very recently the home demand for iron, steel, machinery and textile fabrics was equal to the production. But under the stimulus of our tariff laws production has outrun the home demand, and manufactures, as well as political economists, now recognize the fact that new markets must be opened for the surplus, or the paralysis in trade will continue unrelieved. The great obstacle to the extension of our foreign trade in manufactured goods is that the cost of production is artificially increased by the duties on raw and crude materials. The manufacturers' tariff reform league, an organization formed for the purpose of urging legislation that would lighten the burdens upon the materials consumed in our manufacturing industries, formulated their demands in these two paragraphs:

1. The abolition of all duties on raw materials, in order that we may compete in home and foreign markets with other manufacturing nations, not one of which taxes raw materials.

2. The adjustment of the tariff, so that manufactures approaching nearest the crude state will pay the lower rate, and manufactures that have further advanced, requiring more skill and labor, will pay the higher rate of duties.

If our tariff were reformed according to these provisions the main obstacle to a large export trade in manufactured goods would be removed. In the Central and South American states there is a large population from whom we purchase coffee, sugar, tropical fruits, hides and other raw materials. Manufacturing industries not being established there, raw materials are not wanted from us. Of manufactured goods, however, they are large buyers and importers. They are among the best and largest customers of Great Britain, France and Germany. The United States has been enabled to secure a part of this trade by reducing the labor cost of production to a minimum through the more extended application of machinery and power than other nations. But we have only a small part, only one-seventh of this trade. The manufacturers' tariff reform league has little doubt that trade with the South and Central American states could be extended in an incredibly short space of time if we once begin to base our production upon the same level of prices of materials upon which the British or even the German people start manufacture. The Philadelphia Times which has been a strong organ of protection, now thinks that "it will be the part of wisdom and prudence for the business men of the United States to devote the next few years almost exclusively to the extension of our export trade in manufactured goods. The manufacturing as well as the agricultural interests of the country have been stimulated quite enough until more markets are found for the staples we make and grow." We have acquired the ability to manufacture; now we need the ability to export our finished products.

OUR INDIAN WARDS.

The decision of the United States supreme court that an Indian, born a member of one of the Indian tribes, is not merely by reason of his birth within the United States, and of his afterwards voluntarily separating himself from his tribe and taking up his residence among white citizens, a citizen within the meaning of the first section of the fourteenth amendment of the constitution imposes no new disabilities upon the Indians, but is rather declaratory of the law as it has always existed, since the constitution was formed, and as it has been recognized in all national legislation affecting them. This is clearly brought out in the reference which is made to the decisions of Judge Deady upon the same question. Mr. Justice Gray, in delivering the opinion, says:

The law upon the question before us has been well stated by Judge Deady in the district court of the United States for the district of Oregon. In giving judgment against the plaintiff in a case resembling the case at bar, he said: "Being born a member of 'an independent political community'—the Chinook—he was not born subject to the jurisdiction of the United States—not born in its allegiance." McKay vs. Campbell, 2 Sawyer, 1 8, 134. And in a later case he said: "But an Indian can not make himself a citizen of the United States without the consent and co-operation of the government. The fact that he has abandoned his nomadic life or tribal relations, and adopted the habits and manners of civilized people, may be a good reason why he should be made a citizen of the United States, but does not of itself make him one. To be a citizen of the United States is a political privilege which no one, not born to, can assume without its consent in some form. The Indians in Oregon, not being born subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, were not born citizens thereof, and I am not aware of any law or treaty by which any of them have been made so since.—United States v. Osborne, 6 Sawyer, 406, 409.

While the national legislation has tended more and more towards the education and civilization of the Indians and fitting them to become citizens, "the question whether any Indian tribes, or any members thereof, have become so far advanced in civilization that they should be let out of the state of pupilage, and admitted to the privileges and responsibilities of citizenship, is a question to be decided by the nation whose wards they are and whose citizens they seek to become, and not by each Indian for himself."

Where the tribal relation has ceased, and the Indians "have totally extinguished their national fire and submitted themselves to the laws of the states," some of the states have treated them as citizens, but whether any action of a state can confer rights of citizenship on Indians of a tribe still recognized by the United States as retaining its tribal existence, the court expresses no opinion, though it intimates clearly enough that a state has no such power.

Old Hendricks seems to be posing as a bigger man than Cleveland. He is kindly taking into his hands the business of laying down a policy for the new administration and bossing it generally.

THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

Ohio Prohibitionists Striving for the Submission of a Constitutional Amendment.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—A number of the leading prohibitionists of this state were in secret consultation to-day and this evening. They intend to form an organization in each county of the state for the purpose of securing signatures to the petition asking the legislature at its coming session to submit to the voters a proposition to amend the constitution so that the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors will be prohibited. It is said, however, that Governor Hoadly, in his coming message to the general assembly, will recommend that a license proposition to amend the constitution be submitted. From this view Speaker Marsh demurs, and says that all that will be required is to simply submit a proposition to strike out the inhibition clause to the constitution, thereby referring the entire liquor question to the legislature, where it can be assessed, taxed, or licensed, as the majority may decide. The prohibitionists will receive no aid from the democrats, and the republicans can sit by and watch the destruction of both over the vexed liquor question, which defeated the republicans for two years in succession. It makes but little difference what end of the horn of the dilemma the democrats take.

THE REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN.

A Review of the Whole Work, by Emery A. Storrs.

A Splendid Canvass—Blaine the Strongest Possible Candidate—Why he was Beaten—The Committees Praised.

New York Tribune, Nov. 15.

Emery A. Storrs, of Chicago, has devoted much time to the canvass from its beginning. Though an advocate of President Arthur's renomination, he promptly "indorsed" Blaine and Logan in a cheery, patriotic and witty speech, at the close of the proceedings in Convention hall last June. A frequent visitor at national headquarters, he was familiar in a general way with the steps of the campaign. What he says, therefore, respecting the contest, its conduct and its results is founded upon intelligent observation and knowledge. Mr. Storrs was asked yesterday by a Tribune reporter:

"Would any other candidate than Mr. Blaine, in your judgment, have been more likely to achieve success than he?"

"In my judgment," replied Mr. Storrs "it is clear that if we could not win with Mr. Blaine we could win with no one. My original preferences were for General Arthur, but any one who observed the course of the campaign, and any republican who at all realizes the situation must know that it was indispensable that we should carry Ohio at the October election. Had we failed in that the campaign would have closed there and then. I never so thoroughly recognized the wisdom of the majority as during the campaign in Ohio, when I saw the tremendous enthusiasm which Mr. Blaine's presence excited. Every conceivable agency and accident were against us. The riots in the Hocking valley; the supposed defection of the German vote; the liquor question; the unholy alliance between the prohibitionists and the saloon-keepers; the cutting down of wages in the Cleveland rolling mills, two weeks before the election, 20 per cent.; the fact that in that state the democratic party had at least five dollars to our one; the additional fact that we were compelled to confront an adverse majority of 14,000 the year previous; the state government in the hands of our adversaries, and all its agencies used with the utmost effect; the government of all the great cities in the hands of our adversaries; the supreme confidence of the democratic party of success in that state—all these circumstances conspiring together made the republican success in Ohio one of the grandest achievements in our political history; and that achievement was due in a large measure to the personal presence of Mr. Blaine. I speak from actual knowledge. Before Blaine had been in Ohio three days, so thoroughly aroused was the old republican sentiment that committees were utterly useless and the people took the campaign in their own hands. In common fairness, I ask if any other man in America could have achieved this result? As to his visits to the states of Indiana, Illinois and Michigan I know nothing. He came to this city of New York. Upon his arrival here this state was, as every intelligent democrat concedes, sure for the republican nominees by at least 20,000 plurality. The most marvelous feature of Mr. Blaine's personal canvass is found in the fact that having made scores and scores of speeches, admirable in point of diction and practical statesmanship, in tact and good feeling, not one word of criticism has been passed on a single word uttered in that great number of speeches, all of them necessarily hurriedly made. I venture the assertion that no man on this continent could have gone through such a campaign under such circumstances and with such a result."

THE LOSS OF NEW YORK.

"How then do you account for the loss of the state of New York?"

"In 1882 the state of New York gave Grover Cleveland a majority of over 192,000. That portion of the stalwarts who were supposed to be purely the personal following of Roscoe Conkling had a violent antipathy to Mr. Blaine, but the circle of these antipathies against President Arthur was much larger and wider. Down to the day of Mr. Blaine's arrival in this city, the state was as sure for Blaine and Logan as any unsettled and undetermined question could be. There is no fair-minded democrat who does not at this day concede it. The defection of the independents was more than counterbalanced by the movement of the patriotic Irishmen and workingmen of our ranks, as the result has shown. The dinner given to Mr. Blaine in this city, for which neither the national committee nor the state committee were in the slightest degree responsible, was, to say the least, unfortunate, and lost us, without doubt, many thousand votes. This, however, we could have endured. By a movement proceeding entirely from among themselves, a great body of clergymen desired to pay their respects to Mr. Blaine, and they did so at the Fifth Avenue hotel. All denominations and all creeds were represented. In this movement neither the state nor the national committee had the slightest part. But aside from that the movement was a wise one. A Jewish rabbi made on that occasion a splendid address. It was supposed that at that point speech making in behalf of clergymen had closed, when unfortunately Dr. Burchard, a very aged man, careless in methods of expression, followed with an address delivered in such a manner that even those very near him did not wholly understand him. In that address he indulged in the unfortunate alliteration of 'Rum, Romanism and Rebellion.' This was a very potent and conspicuous insult not only to the Catholic priests and clergy then present, but to the Catholic sentiment throughout the entire country. It was an insult for which in no sense was Mr. Blaine responsible, and I undertake to say from the best information at my command, an expression which Mr. Blaine did not himself hear. This was at once used by the democratic party throughout the whole country. Every dead wall was placarded with it and the pews of the Catholic churches filled with it on Sunday morning. To correct it was impossible. Senator Murphy one of the most distinguished democrats in the state and a leading member of the state committee, assured me that this unfortunate alliteration cost us at least 20,000 votes. The defeat of the republican ticket is on all hands conceded to be attributable directly to this most unfortunate expression of an aged clergyman, who did not probably comprehend the effect of the language which he employed. The success of the democratic party is not due to the independents. It is not due to the prohibitionists. It is not due to the Conkling followers. We could have beaten the entire combination in the state of New York even with a larger majority than General Garfield received. It is due to Dr. Burchard. I think no one denies that the loss of New Jersey and Connecticut is attributable to the same cause."

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE'S GOOD WORK.

"What have you to say as to the management of the national committee?"

"It is possible that we may have had committees more experienced in the details of politics; but the republican party has never had a committee more faithful and more diligent. Consider what in this state they were compelled to confront—the vast majority in favor of Governor Cleveland two years ago; the independent defection, the prohibition movement, and the stealthy defection of Conkling's followers in Oneida county and elsewhere. Under all these circumstances, added to the Burchard escapade, we have lost the state by less than twelve hundred plurality. There must have been some superb management somewhere. It is quite the fashion to criticise the chairman of the national committee, Mr. Jones and Mr. Elkins. Had we succeeded they would have been extolled as great political managers. That we did not succeed comes, as I have shown, from circumstances which they could not possibly control or foresee. Their fidelity it is absurd to question. In season and out of season, and under sacrifices which but few men would have endured, they sought the success of the ticket, and no one has a right to criticise their conduct unless it is some one who has contributed to the success of the party as largely as they have done; and if criticism is limited to these quarters the public may rest assured that there will be no criticism."

WHAT THE STATE COMMITTEE DID.

"How about the state committee?"

"I am not only satisfied, but I know that charges of lukewarmness against Mr. Warren, chairman of that committee, and against Mr. Draper, chairman of the executive committee, are equally unjust and unfounded. They worked for the success of the ticket sought, and desired it as earnestly as I did; and that is the highest possible statement that can be made. It is much wiser for us to close up our ranks and hold the position of a compact, splendid party in the opposition than it is to indulge in recriminations utterly worthless and in the main grossly unjust."

THE PARTY SOLIDIFIED.

"Do you think this defeat seriously affects the future of the party?"

"On the contrary, I think it solidifies the party. We are now a compact, powerful, splendid political organization, identical in opinion and purpose. It is a curious feature of the triumph of the democratic party at this election that the only reason that the country will not be greatly damaged by its success is that its success has not been complete, and the only hope of the patriotic democrat now is, not that that his party has triumphed, but that it has not triumphed completely. The salvation of the country rests on the fact, not that Cleveland is elected—the hope of success on the part of all our great industries rests not on the fact that he is to be our next president, but rather in the fact, that being our next president, he and the house of representatives behind him will be unable to carry out the doctrine which he represents, because of the interposition of the republican senate; and so again, as in the countless instances of the past, the republican party saves the country."

FUTURE OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

"How long will the democratic party hold together?"

"Within six months the so-called reformers of the civil service will be compelled to abandon it. The democratic party is the caucus, and the caucus is the solid south. Assaults will be made upon our industrial system which will fail in their effect, but such assaults will tend to open the eyes of the public and the country to the dangers of democratic rule. This will drive from them all those deluded and dyspeptic republicans who have absurdly believed that the democratic party is as favorably inclined to the protection of American industries as the republican. The independents will not be recognized, and, if one of them should happen to be, the others who are neglected will take alarm, and with their natural tendencies to bolt, the first purpose of the independent will be to purify the democratic party to which it has recently attached itself, by bolting its nominations. The independent seems to know of no method for purifying either church or party save by defeating it. I look for a strengthening, from this time forward of the republican party, and within two years I expect that every northern state will wheel into line under its banner."

A FARMER'S VIEW OF THE POLITICAL FUTURE.

NESTOCTON, Nov. 18.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Under the present surmise that Cleveland is elected, a few brief prognostics as to the near political future may be now in order. Though more agreeable, yet a voluntary forecast is never so correct as a compulsory one, made with deliberation; therefore, with Cleveland in prospect, republicans can look the situation more squarely in the face than they could before, when this event was considered at a distance.

As for myself, I perceive no reason why the party should make an assignment yet. But for the accident of the independent and prohibition vote, in a few of the eastern states, Blaine would have swept the entire north with as great majorities as Grant did at his first election. By a sudden lurch in politics, eight years ago, the democrats were possessed of a majority of over seventy in the house. Now the next house will give them barely forty-one. The same ratio of decrease ten years hence will find the house republican. As to the independent move, the democrats can no more depend upon it four years hence than they could rely (as shown in the late elections) upon the similar movement that forced Cleveland, with such a tremendous majority, into the gubernatorial chair. The independents gave due warning, "We will do away with Blaine forever," they said "if he is nominated." The conditions being given in advance, they are certainly more excusable in their course than were the thousands of republicans who went into the aimless, impolitic folly of dragging prohibition into national politics, which move now is between two fires having antagonized the party who will the more bitterly lay their defeat to that particular movement; and, as for the democrats, they never have had much use for prohibition, and it is unlikely that they ever will.

I cannot imagine, as many other republicans do, that under democratic rule there is danger of another civil war. The old issue of slavery is outlawed and dead. If the south wanted it to-day, the civilized world would not at all permit the re-enslavement of the African. And common sense will certainly teach the southern leaders that if they wish to hold the slender party supremacy that they have now gained, they must never mention the payment of the rebel war debt. Such a demand would dethrone them forever. The south, in the superior cheapness and growing intelligence of its Ethiopian labor, will always have in manufactures the advantage of the north. Were she separated from it a high northern tariff would only give her the feeling of other nations.

Neither will there be any free trade. It is only a card gotten up in the main to create a winning issue. At any rate the best democratic talent in congress is against it; besides the great iron, sugar, tobacco, wool and other industries will not permit it.

I will venture the unrepublican opinion also, that a few years of democratic rule will do more to extinguish southern prejudice against federal rule and disintegrate its present social solidity than would forty years of continued republican domination, because it will enable them to see how little there really was in it to create feelings of dread and fear on their part. They will find that in the last decade they have enjoyed fully all the rights as a people that any democratic administration will be able to give them. The alleged weight that is generally attached to federal patronage under our state and government is mere moonshine, anyhow. With all its practical force, artfully used as possible, it has not recovered a single southern city from democratic rule.

Unity on the part of the republican party, together with a continuance of the present depression in trade, will easily place the latter at the helm again four years hence; but with a fair democratic administration, and an awakening up again of traffic to life and vitality, they may hold their sway for a longer period than that. But under the future rule of either party this country will certainly never make the progress in the same length of time that it did under republican rule in the sixteen years intervening between 1865 and 1882. In that period were built nearly all the grand trunk lines of railways that will be needed for the next century, and gathered the surplus of Europe and planted them thickly over the western hills and plains clear to the rock-bound shores of the Pacific. Literally the "best is done" by way of enterprise and the populating of the country, henceforth our growth though steady will be more slowly than in the past. This fact will go into history and must redound to the credit of the republican party. I. M. L.

It is reported that Mr. St. John has declared that he would "continue the fight." It looks like an aggravated case of delirium tremens.—N. Y. Tribune.

A red buoy has been anchored just inside the bar at the entrance to Yaquina harbor, which will be of much service to vessels visiting that port.

So great was the call for the Christmas number of Harper's Monthly that the entire lot received by W. B. Ayer & Co. went off in a few days.

A deed from R. Glisan and wife, conveying lot 1 in block 288, in Couch's addition, to Fitz Ferguson, for the consideration of $1200, was filed in the county clerk's office yesterday.

Offerings will be made in all the large places of the state this week, and collections taken up in all the churches, Thanksgiving day, for the Good Samaritan hospital. The railroad companies have all kindly offered to carry such goods free of charge.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

THE FARMER AND HIS TURKEY [illegible] is a general thing [illegible] to bargain and sometimes [illegible] business. Yesterday one of [illegible] turkeys to Central market and [illegible] dispose of them to a poultry dealer. He [illegible] cents per pound more than [illegible] and so could not make a trade. [illegible] he wanted to sell them as much as [illegible] asked more than they were worth. [illegible] said that none of the fowls would weigh [illegible] and the farmer [illegible] that he had one which would weigh [illegible]. The bet was made, the money put up and the turkey weighed. It [illegible] pounds and the farmer [illegible]. He felt very sore over the matter and only [illegible] by giving a turkey in the place of the money. This he did because the money was won while the turkeys brought [illegible]. [illegible] several children [illegible] mother about the [illegible]. It [illegible] interesting to know how he settled with his [illegible] of his turkey. There was [illegible] the farmer received but little consolation [illegible]

A CHARGE OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.—[illegible] some [illegible] was arraigned in the [illegible] court yesterday afternoon upon a charge of cruelty to animals. The complaint against New[illegible] was sworn to by a policeman who says that the former was driving a lame horse along the street. [illegible] was so lame in fact was the animal that he was hardly able to walk. [illegible] appeared as counsel for [illegible] and asked the court for a jury trial. Judge Moreland held that upon such a question he had no jurisdiction. The offense was a crime against the state and [illegible] the law provided no way for a justice of the peace to try a case of the kind or inflict any penalty. All that he could do was to examine into the matter and if he found sufficient evidence to warrant him in so doing, he would have to hold [illegible] to await the action of the grand jury. If sufficient evidence was not produced of course the defendant would be discharged. By consent of the district attorney examination of the case was then postponed until to-day.

COMPLIMENTS TO A PORTLAND BOY.—[illegible] Robbins, a young man born in Portland, and a son of [illegible] Robbins, who was in business here many years ago, but is now living in California, has recently been appointed superintendent of the Eureka Consolidated Mining company. A California paper has the following complimentary remarks concerning the new appointee: "The company is very fortunate in securing the services of such a thorough business man and practical miner as Mr. Robbins to look after their affairs at this end of the line. Mr. Robbins has been superintendent of the Alexandria and other mines in this county for years, and is thoroughly acquainted with the Eureka mining district. He is respected and esteemed by all who know him, and his legion of friends here as well as in other parts of the country, are glad to see him assume the responsibilities of the important office of superintendent of the Eureka Con."

MAN PROBABLY LOST.—A man in the employ of August Dolta, of Campi's restaurant, has been missing since Saturday. Dolta owns a ranch on the Columbia opposite Kalama, and the missing man was employed on the ranch. He is a native of Switzerland, and goes by the name of Antoine. On Saturday evening he and some others left in search of a cow that had strayed into the woods. The search party separated, Antoine being accompanied by a dog and carrying a gun. After dark the rest of the party returned not having found the cow. Antoine did not return that night, and a search for him was instituted the next day, which is now being kept up. It is supposed that he has met with an accident through his gun or is wandering about the woods. He is almost a stranger here. A trunk belonging to him is at Campi's hotel.

STRAIGHTENING A MONEY MATTER.—The case of Romes vs. Feurer was up in the state circuit court again yesterday. Romes, it seems, worked in Feurer's brewery till his wages amounted to some $400. Then he thought it was time to go into the saloon business on his own account, and entered into negotiations with one Hunneman for the purchase of a bar joint. Hunneman seems to have owed Feurer some money and in trying to arrange these money matters some misunderstanding arose which the court and counsel and jury tried to straighten. The case was tried at the last term of court and Romes obtained judgment for $400. But there was still something unsatisfactory about the matter and the judgment was set aside, and the case is on trial again.

GRACE TAYLOR.—By invitation of the pastor, Rev. E. W. Caswell, the members of Grace M. E. church met at his residence Monday evening. The attractive parlors of the parsonage were filled with young people of the church who are becoming very warmly attached to Mr. Caswell and heartily enter into his plans of church work. Besides arranging for [illegible] with literary and musical features to be held at the residence of Mrs. E. J. Northrup next Monday evening, steps were taken looking to the formation of a Chautauqua circle. Mrs. E. W. Caswell, Miss Martha Dickinson and Miss Louise Miller were appointed a committee to secure names and perfect the organization.

OTHER CREDITORS APPEAR.—An attachment for $217 was placed on the stock of A. Bradshaw yesterday by Ivan R. Dawson. Knowles, Davis & Knowles also placed an attachment on the [illegible] stock for $153. It will be remembered that Bradshaw confessed judgment in favor of A. R. Seuthal for $11,000, and execution was issued and the stock about to be sold when another creditor obtained a restraining order from Judge Smith, stopped the sale and levied an attachment for the amount due him. Since that time several other creditors have attached under the shelter of the same restraining order and an effort will be made to show that Bradshaw did not owe Rosenthal any such sum as he confessed judgment for.

OFFERINGS FOR THE HOSPITAL.—Several vehicles will begin to-day a thorough canvass of the business portion of the town in the interest of the Good Samaritan hospital. Offerings in goods of all kinds as well as in money, will be thankfully received. It is hoped all will give something. The driver of each wagon will have a book in which the people are requested to write their names and their offerings. Persons who are not called upon to-day and who have any articles at their residence to give to this object will please send word to the effect to Dr. Hill at the Bishop Scott Grammar School. He will have an expressman call for such donations Friday and Saturday.

COLONEL HARDENBERG'S BODY.—Thomas H. Tremper, a nephew of the deceased P. D. W. Hardenberg, arrived in this city yesterday from the east to take charge of the remains. The body has been embalmed, and yesterday many friends of the deceased took a last look at the benign countenance which for so many years has been a familiar one in Portland. The process of preservation has given a lifelike look to the features and the cheeks have assumed a ruddy hue. Coroner Cooke stated last evening that it had not yet been decided what to do with the remains, but the probabilities are that they will be taken back to the home of his relatives in the east for burial.

AFTER TWENTY-TWO YEARS.—Judge H. M. Maguire, of Bozeman, Montana, arrived here yesterday, and saw the city for the first time in twenty-two years. He was editorial writer on the News in 1861, and afterwards went to Utah, where he established the first Gentile paper. Since then, he has been engaged in mining and journalism on the Pacific coast. Judge Maguire likens his feelings upon arrival here yesterday to those of Rip Van Winkle when he returned to the village of Falling Waters, after an absence of nearly the same duration. He has not yet been able to find the spot where the office of the paper which he served stood. He will leave soon for Los Angeles.

THE ELEVENTH STREET IMPROVEMENT.—An inquiry printed yesterday morning asked how it was that the Eleventh street improvement was paid out of the general fund. It is found that such payment was made because the owners of the property resisted payment, claiming that the street had not been improved as provided by ordinance and the circuit court and held that as the city had ordered the work and had issued warrants therefor, it was bound to provide a fund for payment of them. Hence, payment was made by the common council out of the general fund. The case is still pending in court, and if the city wins it the money will be collected from the property owners and put back in the treasury.

WANT TO LEARN THE FOLLY.—Phœbe [illegible] recently commenced suit in the state circuit court yesterday to obtain a divorce from her husband [illegible]. Notwithstanding the large number of couples applying for divorce, men and women are still marrying and getting married, [illegible] which shows that some people will not profit from the experience of some others but [illegible] by who insisted on learning to dance [illegible] just going to see the folly of it themselves.

VOORHEES' MAJORITY.—The official vote of Douglas county gives Armstrong 33 majority. For this information THE OREGONIAN is indebted to Mr. P. B. Johnson of the Walla Walla Union, now in the city. Voorhees' majority in the territory will not vary far from 148.

VAGRANTS IN JAIL.—[illegible] were [illegible] yesterday [illegible] Lizzie Brasey. She has been [illegible] respectable [illegible] passers by. Many [illegible] have spoken [illegible] Brasey [illegible] to unsel [illegible] the worst [illegible] to misbehave when [illegible] they [illegible] arrest them for disorderly [illegible]. When he was [illegible] over the insults to decency continued [illegible] At last, he [illegible] the two [illegible] in the streets [illegible] vagrancy [illegible] guilty and will [illegible] for sentence. There is no town [illegible] to [illegible] usually follow [illegible] vagrants—and the law [illegible] that few [illegible] to [illegible] mosaics until these places can [illegible] respectable people can [illegible] with all in the public streets without having their ears offended by [illegible] were William Deagan and George Johnson. The former pleaded guilty. [illegible] Johnson employed W. W. [illegible] as counsel, and demanded a jury trial, which was denied. Evidence was then taken which did not show much [illegible] His [illegible] only serve to show that he has been [illegible] about the saloons, washing spittoons, etc. for his food and drink, and occasionally helping to tend bar for some day keeper. He roomed with George Wiseman, who is much the same kind of a fellow. Judge Moreland took the case under advisement.

RECOVERED HIS STOLEN COAT.—About noon yesterday, while police captain Hall was coming back to the station from his dinner, he was stopped at the corner of First and Washington streets by an excited man who pointed to a negro walking along just ahead of them and demanded his arrest. He explained that the negro was at that moment wearing a coat that had been stolen from him nearly three weeks ago. Hall walked behind the man until he reached the corner of Second and Oak streets when he quietly arrested him and took him over to the city jail. The young negro told a very straight story of how the coat came honestly into his possession. He said he bought it at Wise's pawn shop, two weeks ago, and that three friends were with him when he made the purchase. A policeman went down to the pawnshop to investigate the truth of the prisoner's story, reported upon his return that Wise at first denied ever selling any coat to a negro, but when told that the latter claimed to have three witnesses to the transaction, he said he might have sold it. Strange as it may seem there have been pawnbrokers who have denied ever having seen stolen property that has passed through their hands for fear of having to make restitution. The negro whose name is William Jones, was arraigned in the police court, and hearing of the case was postponed until to-day. The owner of the coat is T. McCullough, and the theft of the garment was reported to the police on the 5th of November. The police do not believe that Jones is the thief, and several well known colored citizens of the town who know him are certain he is not. At all events McCullough has found his coat, and if Jones can prove that he bought it of the pawnbroker the latter will be the man that is out and injured.

SCIENTIFIC ESSAYS ON SHELLFISH.—An ardent young naturalist of this city, connected with the daily press, is about to publish the scientific results of his observations during a week's visit to the beach last summer. Among the subjects which he will throw a flood of light on are the embryology of the razor clam, the systematic zoology and anatomy and embryology of the soft-shelled crab, also a monograph upon the development and rise and fall of the Shoalwater bay oyster. He has also made researches into the relationship of the Balanoglossus to the Echinoderms and the resemblance they bear to the vertebrates. His results show that the gills of the razor clam were originally cut lias, but that by accretion and absorption they have advanced to the primitive condition of the gills of the gasteropods. In this change a delamination has taken place over the whole interior surface of the blastoderm, and the digestive cavity has been obliterated, the enteron has been supplanted by the ectoderm, and the epigastric juices have been absorbed to form a cœnosarc. The work will be handsomely illustrated.

VARIETY OF FOOD FOR THANKSGIVING.—Although our markets cannot afford the large variety of comestibles as those of the great eastern cities, yet the citizens of Portland scarcely lack for a way of having all that is necessary to furnish forth their tables for the great national feast which occurs to-morrow. The markets have been filled with splendid beef and mutton for some time, hogs of all sizes, from the tender suckling pig to the fat porker, are plenty. Turkeys are pouring in by boat and rail from all points by the hundred and there is no lack of fat geese and ducks for those who prefer them. As for game, there are fat wild geese, luscious canvas back ducks, grouse, pheasants, quail, prairie chickens and other delights in plenty and for fish there is salmon and trout besides salt water fish from the Sound. Oh, yes we shall all do very well indeed, if we have any money or credit and a good appetite and digestion. So let us eat what is set before us and be thankful.

SO THEY WON'T BE IMPOSED ON.—Several residents in this city have received this week circulars from Henry N. Copp of Washington, D. C., calling attention to his book which gives a list of all federal offices that pay more than $500 a year. It says: "Applicants for office wise, will buy this book so that they cannot be imposed on with small salaries when their social position and political influence ought to be rewarded with an office paying several thousand dollars annually. The book ought to have a large sale in Oregon where there are acres and acres, in fact whole sections in township of social position and political influence. Now is the time to push the sale of the work. Perhaps after the new president has declared his position on the question of civil service the demand will not be so great.

NO NEED OF THE IMPORTED ARTICLE.—The Northern Pacific Immigration bureau in this city considers itself pretty well equipped with information on all subjects of interest to intending settlers. Yesterday a request was received that will probably remain unanswered for some time. It was from Greenville, Mississippi, asking what the prospects were for four federal officeholders who expect to be out of their present employment some time next March. One is a marshal, another a district attorney and the remaining two postmasters. This is one class of immigrants for which neither the railway company nor the board of trade has made provision. Indeed, there has been no demand in the past for the imported article and next spring we will have it for export in large quantities.

HOW AN EYE WAS DISCOLORED.—Hon. D. P. Thompson was seen on the streets yesterday with a very bad case of black eye. His friends were rather delicate about inquiring into the cause of the discoloration and Mr. Thompson was not stopping to make explanations to every body he met so there seemed a dearth of information about the matter. At last a reporter, one of those fellows who rush in where angels fear to tread, determined to find out how that eye was put in mourning and after some trouble ascertained that a young woman did it. She was a very young one too, being Mr. Thompson's infant daughter who while he was playing with her, struck him in the eye with a toy she had in her hand and knocked him out instanter.

ARRANGING THROUGH FREIGHT RATES.—Mr. A. L. Stokes, general freight and passenger agent of the O. R. & N., during his visit to San Francisco, had several conferences with the traffic managers of other Pacific coast lines and Commissioner Ristine, relative to the manner of conducting through traffic next year. The matter was referred to the Pacific coast lines by the Transcontinental association at their last meeting. After long discussion of several pertinent questions a resolution was adopted which will be presented to the association at the next meeting to be held December 10 at Denver or Chicago. The impression prevails that several very important changes will be made in the present manner or system of the rates.

PRIZES FOR MASQUERADERS.—There was a carnival at the pavilion skating rink last evening which was well attended. About thirty costumes were exhibited, and all were well sustained. There were four prizes offered by the management, which were awarded as follows: Best sustained woman character [illegible]; best housekeeper [illegible] dressing [illegible] most graceful male skater, A. E. Bo[illegible] best sustained male character [illegible] a dude [illegible] silver cup [illegible] most graceful lady skater, Miss [illegible] a silver cake basket.

[illegible] HALF-BREED.—[illegible] Zittmayer, who keeps a saloon at the corner of Fourth and Washington streets, was arrested yesterday on a charge of selling liquor to Indians. The charge was preferred by one Sam Harvey, a worthless fellow, who having been fined for selling liquor to Indians, made this complaint just to get even. The party to whom Zittmayer sold a drink was one John Kelly, a half breed, whom no one would suppose could be classed as an Indian. It is probable that Mr. Zittmayer, however, is technically guilty.

OVERREACHED [illegible].—[illegible] James [illegible] and James [illegible] Grocer [illegible] witness [illegible] Cities [illegible] who knew [illegible] county jail [illegible] he had [illegible] the finger [illegible] his case [illegible] the penitentiary.

FOOTPAD FOILED.—A. L. Butler had an experience the other evening of which might have had a serious ending. He was walking home about 11 o'clock and as he turned the corner of Fifth and B he was confronted with the muzzle of a revolver held by a man. Before the fellow had time to introduce himself or make known the object of holding the revolver, Butler caught the weapon with his right hand. The hammer descended, but it happened to catch in the thin part of Butler's palm, between the thumb and first finger and this prevented the explosion of the cartridge. He tried to wrest the weapon from his assailant, but the latter had the stronger hold. Then quick as a flash, Butler struck the footpad under the chin with the left hand, and laid him out in the mud. Not a word was spoken, Butler going his way and the foiled robber taking to his heels in the opposite direction.

PATENT WOOD-SAWING MACHINE.—Frank Richet has received from Detroit a model of what seems to be an excellent wood-sawing machine. It is operated by a crank, just as a grindstone is turned. The machine consists of two upright frames supporting the fly wheel and connecting machinery, which give two saws an oscillating motion. In front of the frames there is a simple ratchet contrivance for holding the cordwood firmly in position while being sawed. By an automatic arrangement the saws are thrown upward to their original place after they have cut through the wood. One or both saws can be used without change of gear. It is stated that two men, one to "feed" the machine, the other to turn the crank—can cut ten cords of fir or eight cords of hardwood in ten hours. A full sized machine will arrive here from the model and if it proves a success Mr. Richet will probably go into the manufacture of them extensively.

SET FIRE IN A SCHOOL HOUSE.—On last Sunday morning at 4 o'clock occurred a second attempt to destroy the school-house on the Puyallup Indian reservation by setting fire to it. On Sunday the fire was kindled inside of the school room near the stove, where oil was thrown on the floor and a lot of fine pitch kindling used. The fire was extinguished before much damage was done. In the upper story about forty Indian boys were sleeping, who were awakened by the stifling smoke and gave the alarm. The authorities have apprehended the guilty parties, two of the oldest Indian boys who sold egged sneaked down stairs from bed, started the fire and then returned quietly up stairs. Fatally the young rascals had grown weary of the school business.

NOT THE MAN.—A telegram to the Oregonian from The Dalles last night states that the man arrested [illegible] Samuel [illegible] was [illegible] the [illegible] yesterday [illegible] passed a quiet day yesterday, and last night will be resting peacefully. There is a few faint hopes of his recovery.

ASKS ADMINISTRATION OF [illegible].—Mrs. Rachael Hawthorne has petitioned the county court to administer [illegible] which her husband died seized. The Hawthorne estate, by the terms of the will of her husband, was to remain intact until the minor heirs become of age, the widow in the meantime to have the use of the undivided property.

A FINE PLACE FOR MEALS

To-morrow Bruin, Francis & Co. will inaugurate, at Alisky's refreshment parlors, a service of complete meals during usual hours. Some time since, at the earnest solicitation of numerous business men, the firm began to serve mid-day luncheons, and were so successful as caterers in this line that they were further solicited to extend their service to breakfasts and dinners also. Many traveling men joined in the request. Preparatory to the new order of things, the handsome dining hall was further beautified with rich wall decorations and new furniture. Dinner table d'hote will hereafter be served every day from 5 to 8. Breakfast is served from 8 A. M. until 2 P. M. the viands own to the noon hour and after partaking of the nature of luncheon. Two cooks, until recently employed at the Continental, the finest restaurant in Philadelphia, were engaged and arrived a few days ago. It is hardly necessary to say that the meals will be first class in every respect. To-morrow, a special thanksgiving table d'hote dinner will be served from 5 until 8, and it will be a meal, the equal of which for variety and excellence of food is seldom experienced in a public dining hall.

THANKSGIVING DINNER

The ladies of the Taylor street Methodist church will serve a Thanksgiving dinner in the basement of the church to-morrow from 12:30 to 3:30 P. M. It will be a typical home dinner and the cost is 50 cents. Young men not fortunate enough to have an invitation to "dine out" will find a cordial welcome and an excellent meal there. The crazy silk quilt will be voted for during the dinner hour. Following is the

VALUABLE INVENTION

The great desideratum of fighting flames [illegible] of a greater [illegible] the climax of invention in that respect seems to have [illegible] of our [illegible] Portland, appears [illegible] Harry Statesman, engineer of [illegible] engine company. The time for producing steam by this contrivance is not [illegible] less than it can be accomplished by the Sisly fire engine of this city and [illegible] value for fire engines or any others where time is of the first importance when called into requisition it is calculated to supersede all others. "Harry" is justly proud of his invention and will take the necessary steps to have it patented and introduced in the market. "There's millions in it" probably.

OLD FOLKS

The old folks concert was repeated last evening to an increased audience. Everything passed off smoothly and well as on the previous evening. The programme was somewhat abridged in order to allow ample time to do justice to the New England dinner which followed, and this was done accordingly, the shortage on music being satisfactorily atoned for by plentiful supplies of pork and beans, Johnny cake, etc. The concerts have been successful in every respect, and all parties concerned are to be congratulated on the result. Miss Sewell of Mount Tabor and Mrs. Walter Winter were the prime [illegible] "harpsichorders" of the occasion. The concert will be repeated in the new Baptist church at Mount Tabor on Tuesday evening next.

STRUCK IT RICH

A party consisting of eight of our citizens have discovered what is supposed to be a very valuable mine. It is located on a river about twelve miles east of Tillamook. Three of these gentlemen, viz: Pennumbra, Kelly, H. C. Carmack and W. D. Prettyman are the incorporators of what is now called the Black Hawk Gold and Silver Mining Company. Several specimens of the rock which is said to be one and one half miles in length, have been brought to Portland and have been assayed with the following result: First assay by Fiske, showed $1101.51 to the ton; second assay, also by Fiske, $1381.17; third assay, by Jenny, $2,054.45; fourth assay, by Wing, $1,812.64. All these assays have been made within a few weeks. Three men are now at work blasting and taking out the ore. One ton is expected to arrive in Portland within a week, which will be put through the crusher at the Union Iron works, after which the result will be given to the readers of this paper.

Formal Completion of the Oregon Short Line at the Junction

The Official Vote of California—The Missing Banker of Moscow Found to be Short in his Accounts—San Francisco Notes

HUNTINGTON, Nov. 25.—Special. About [illegible] people gathered at the junction of the Oregon Short Line and the O. R. & N. this afternoon with fine weather and a clear sky. At 3 [illegible] Henry B. Thielsen, chief engineer of the O. R. & N., set the spike and F. C. Smeed, assistant chief engineer of the Union Pacific railway, struck the first blow, after which Dr. Keene, H. S. Rowe, R. M. Steel, Senator Slater and others drove it home. Three cheers were given for the Oregon Short Line and three more for the O. R. & N. The train ran down over the gap to the Snake river bridge, built of steel and a magnificent structure, after which all parties started back to Portland. The first passengers through for the east by this line were Senator James H. Slater and daughter, Jasper Babcock and J. M. Goodwin. The Salt Lake road is fully ballasted from Huntington to Weiser, and they expect to make good time. There was fine weather all day, and everybody is in good spirits.

The O. R. & N. road from Umatilla to Huntington is undoubtedly the best constructed line of new track on the Pacific coast, if not in the United States. Through freight will be received at Portland and Omaha, commencing to-morrow. Passenger service will be inaugurated Monday, December 1.

THE MOSCOW MYSTERY SOLVED.

WALLA WALLA, Nov. 25.—Special.—The mystery of Herbert Clark's disappearance is solved by the discovery of a discrepancy in the books at the bank of Moscow, of between $10,000 and $14,000. It will not affect the bank as over $1,000,000 is behind it. Clark was considered a representative young man, and had a splendid reputation for business integrity.

MEXICO.

BLOODY FIGHT IN SONORA.

TUCSON, Nov. 25.—There is a report here to-night that a bloody tragedy occurred at the Cavonea copper camp, in Sonora, about fifty miles from Nogales, on Saturday last, resulting in the death of six men and the wounding of a number of others. At 10 o'clock Saturday forenoon some drunken Mexicans beat an American teamster over the head with rocks. The other Americans present then armed themselves. Shortly afterwards Mexican mounted police arrived and demanded that the Americans give up their weapons. This they refused to do and a fight took place, with the result as stated.

ITEMS FROM THE DALLES

THE DALLES, Nov. 25.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Mays were made happy Friday by the arrival in their family of a son.

Mrs. L. L. McArthur and children arrived home from Derry Saturday evening. They have been at Mrs. McArthur's old home since they returned from the east.

Thanksgiving day will be observed by union services at the Baptist church at 11 o'clock in the forenoon. In the evening there will be a social gathering at the Jacksons' house.

The Mozart Club will give their annual concert at the Baptist church next Friday evening. The club have been some time in preparing for this event, and the programme promises to be of unusual interest.

Mr. Partridge, the artist, was thrown from a horse Wednesday afternoon and received a severe shaking up. He received several bad wounds about the face and head but was fortunate in escaping with no more serious injuries.

The weather for the past two weeks has been much more like the weather of the Willamette valley than the usual light weather of Wasco county. The sun has made its appearance only once in nearly three weeks. It is, however, mild and stock is in fine condition.

The change in the time table is such that THE OREGONIAN can not be obtained until the morning after it is published. It would be a great accommodation to The Dalles people if the papers could be sent up on the boat or a freight train so as to be distributed at night.

F. L. Murphy, who formerly lived on Chenoweth creek, about four miles from town was arrested Saturday afternoon on a charge of arson. His house was burned about three weeks ago, and when he presented his claim to the State Insurance Company an agent was sent up here to investigate the case; circumstances were such that the agent instead of settling the case had Murphy arrested. The examination was commenced Monday before Justice McArthur.

BAKER CITY NOTES

J. P. Ross and family have gone to Iowa on a visit.

The cars now reach this place at noon, from below.

The town of Ontario is growing rapidly, and bids fair to be quite a place.

The real estate market is firm, and all have confidence in the future of the place.

G. W. Plummer of the Tribune will start a daily to-morrow. It will have the dispatches. Success to it.

The Arlington hotel has changed hands. W. R. Usher retiring and Smith & Hussey of the St. Laurance, taking charge.

In June 1478 votes were cast in this county, including about 300 railroad hands. This fall the railroad vote was about 75, yet at the November election there were 177 votes cast. In June this county cast 45 votes in November, 611.

ASSAULT AT JUNCTION CITY

EUGENE CITY, Nov. 25.—Deputy Sheriff C[illegible] has started in search of [illegible] Baber, [illegible] son of Mr. William Baber, a prominent merchant of Junction City. The charge against young Baber is an unprovoked assault on the person of Mr. William Pitney, yesterday morning, in which Baber, stepping up behind Pitney, struck him repeatedly over the head with a heavy chain and being prevented from further use of the chain snatched a shotgun from the hand of a boy who happened to be passing, attempted to fire at Pitney with both barrels of the gun, which fortunately was not loaded. Pitney got out of the way and Baber, determined on having a "funeral of some kind," attempted to shoot one or two other citizens. He then made his escape from the town and has not been heard of since. He is a young man of 19 or 20 years of age. The only cause that can be imagined for the assault, is that Mr. Pitney, who is recorder of Junction City, has several times imposed a fine on young Baber for [illegible] conduct.

FOREIGN DISPATCHES.

THE WAR IN CHINA

ENGLAND MEDIATING BETWEEN FRANCE AND CHINA

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Waddington, French ambassador to England, and Marquis Tseng are conducting negotiations through Granville, British foreign secretary, which give some promise to a settlement of the dispute between France and China. The main points of the agreement which would be satisfactory to China and France are known to both diplomats, and these indicate that both countries must make large concessions. China repudiates all responsibility for the Langson affair, but will make honorable concessions to France to secure a peaceful settlement. England will be satisfied if she can be the means of restoring the former concord of France and China.

THE CHINESE TROUBLE.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Times Shanghai special says: The action of the French has driven China to reopen the Tonquin question, and it is asserted she will ask for English mediation. The secretaries of Prince Li assert that they saw Captain Fourniers, who negotiated the Tien Tsin treaty for France, make erasures in the treaty.

The Pekin correspondent of the Times telegraphs the British minister to China is inactive, and that the breach is widening between China and France.

Tsung Li Yamen is calmly confident of China's powers, and has decided to reject Captain Fourniers' May convention as a basis for negotiations. It will reopen the whole question.

GERMANY

BANQUET BY SCIENTIFIC SOCIETIES

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—The geographical and anthropological societies gave a banquet to-night at Kaiserhof to Stanley and other experts attending the Congo conference. There were present 275 persons. Professor Beyrich proposed the health of the emperor of Germany. Count Negri, Italian ambassador to England and Italian delegate to the Congo conference, delivered a speech in German, in which he eulogized the efforts of Germany to advance science. Referring to Baron von Humboldt and Henri Ritter, Negri said he would tell his countrymen that German dash and daring were clearing the way for the Italian muse. [Applause.] Count Ceolo, of Spain, proposed a toast to Stanley and Barthau. Stanley replied, and told the story of his travels in Africa, and said the welfare of Africa depended solely upon Christianity and civilization. Verschow, proposed the health of Montegazza, delegate from Italy, who in reply proposed the "Alliance of politics and science."

The question as to whether a murder was committed will then be determined.

RAILROAD NOTES

OVER THE NEW ROUTE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—On and after December 1st, trains Nos. 1 and 2 of the Union Pacific road will contain through cars for the Pacific coast. They will go by the Oregon Short Line, leaving Omaha at the usual time, reaching Granger at 11 A. M. the next day, and arriving at Huntington, the terminus of the Oregon Short Line at noon the second day. At the latter point the line of the Oregon Railway and Navigation company begins. The train will make close connections and reach Portland at 8:10 o'clock on the following morning.

A SALVATION ARMY EXPERIENCE

London Letter in Boston Herald.

As the Salvation army is being a good deal talked about just now, will you forgive me if I repeat here an incident that occurred at one of its headquarters. As I am the hero of my own story in this case I may, perhaps, be indulged with the right of republication. My encounter with the guard at the Oxford circus quarters is true in every particular.

The adjacent clocks were striking the hour. It was 10 P. M. I was passing a full-lighted hall. "Salvation Army" gleamed at the portals on imposing lamps. Just within were flaming placards inviting me to "Come and be Saved," and telling me that "Here" I could "be saved." Strains of vocal music came invitingly out into the street. I entered. At least I attempted to do so. A pale-faced, youthful, yet haughty janitor in military uniform (too haughty, surely, for such an office) obstructed me with his arm. I am not used to being obstructed. I never put myself in the way of such attentions. Gently removing the impediment, with a suggestion that I did not wish to hurt it, I mildly asked what the impediment meant.

"Too late," said the young man.

The remark sounded very much like a quotation. I think my friend Mr. Fred Cowen has set it to music.

"Too late to be saved?" I asked. "The authorities are surely against you there."

"You can't come in," he answered.

"And there again you are wrong," I said. "If you are really quoting, the line is, 'You may not enter in,' the words of a certain ballad still running in my memory, the one once being given. 'You can't come in' are the words of a negro song." I said.

"What is it?" asked a second officer on guard, stalking up defiantly and confronting me.

"I always believed, on the very best authority, that it is never too late to be saved. This young man tells me it is too late now. Is there any higher authority in the building?"

"Not to-night; you can't go in," said guardian No. 2.

The situation tickled me and recalled profane anecdotes of the conduct of St. Peter under trying circumstances. I could not resist falling into the humor of it. I saw a decorated officer a little further on. At some risk (for guardians one and two looked decidedly pugnacious) I pushed my way to No. 3.

"Am I too late?" I asked, pointing to the placard above his head, inviting me to come.

"Must come to-morrow, eh?"

"Aye, just come at half past 12 in the [illegible], or at 8 the nicht."

"No chance before?" I said, pointing at the placard. "And the devil has so many painted temples open."

"I cannot help that," said the Scotch soldier. "The young man's quite right, ye're too late the night."

Sounds of voices singing a rousing hymn accompanied our conversation. I could not help thinking, after all, how much better they manage these things in Roman Catholic countries. I verily believe that only my tact and self possession prevented the two sentinels from laying violent hands upon me for daring to step even into the outer portals of the Salvation Temple after regulation hour. If St. Peter is as particular as these earthly representatives, I fear it will go hard with myself and some of my contemporaries for whom the night can hardly be said to have begun at 10 P. M.

A FIELD OPEN TO THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

New York Times.

There is a good field still open to the republican party. It is called upon after nearly a quarter of a century of power to resume the work of an opposition party, in which it won some of its greatest victories and in which it developed its greatest men. The next four years may see many changes in the composition of both parties, but nothing is more certain than that the intelligence, the conscientious devotion to principle, the general purity and disinterestedness which were the characteristics of the republicans in their best days will have ample scope in the immediate future, and will have their due influence upon the course of national affairs.

The Old Clock Goes Again.

N[illegible] Times.

A clock can behave strangely, as well as other people. There is a gentleman in this county who has a clock that has been setting on his mantelpiece for several years, and during which time it has not opened its mouth nor said a word. This gentleman was in serious doubt about Cleveland's election, and would not feel encouraged. On Sunday, however, he received a morning paper from Forsyth. The information it contained settled all the uncertainty on his mind, and he exclaimed: "Well, Cleveland is elected beyond a doubt." His daughter, who has been nearly as much interested as her father, turned to the clock on a sudden impulse and waving her hand toward it, said: "Now go, old clock!" As if in obedience to her command, the clock struck. It had not been worked nor touched. What made it strike, if it was not to celebrate the victory of democracy and the return to honest government and reform.

Among the transparencies carried by the Harvard students, in a late political procession, was one inscribed "The Faculty," and underneath the inscription "Turn the rascals out."

Twin Foes to Life

Are Indigestion and Constipation. Their primary symptoms are among the most distressing of minor human ailments, and a host of diseases, specially resultant from them, mutually aggravate each other and assail at once the whole machinery of life. Nausea, Foul Breath, Sour Stomach, Dizziness, Headaches, Bilious Fever, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Kidney Diseases, Piles, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Dropsy, and various Skin Disorders, are among the symptoms and maladies caused by derangement of the stomach and bowels.

A Thorough Purgative

medicine is the first necessity for cure. Then the cathartic effect must be maintained, in mild degree, just sufficient to prevent a recurrence of costiveness, and at the same time the liver, kidneys and stomach must be stimulated and strengthened.

Ayer's Pills

Accomplish this restorative work better than any other medicine. They are searching and thorough yet mild in their purgative action. They do not gripe the patient, and do not induce a costive reaction, as is the effect of other cathartics. Withal, they possess special properties, diuretic, hepatic and tonic, of the highest medicinal value and

Absolutely Cure

All diseases proceeding from disorder of the digestive and assimilatory organs. The prompt use of AYER'S PILLS to correct the first indications of costiveness, averts the serious illnesses which neglect of that condition would inevitably induce. All irregularities in the action of the bowels—looseness as well as constipation—are beneficially controlled by AYER'S PILLS, and for the stimulation of digestive organs weakened by long-continued dyspepsia, one or two of AYER'S PILLS daily after dinner, will do more good than anything else.

Leading Physicians Concede

That AYER'S PILLS are the best of all cathartic medicines, and many practitioners, of the highest standing, customarily prescribe them.
